

DEATH'S HARVEST

Three Aged Residents of the County Capitol

ANSWER FINAL SUMMONS

Moses A. Points, William Watson Barclay and Mrs. Mary Ann Thomas Called Beyond.

About 11 o'clock Tuesday night Moses Allen Points, senior member of the law firm of Points, Points and Points, and for nearly half a century a practicing member of the Bedford Bar, died at his home on Penn Street.

MOSES A. POINTS

Mr. Points was born in Bedford Township May 7, 1839, hence was 72 years, eight months and nine days of age. In his boyhood he attended the public schools and afterwards taught in the common schools. He then became a student at the Allegheny Seminary at Rainsburg, where he gave special attention to higher mathematics and the ancient languages. In 1861 he entered the sophomore class in Dickinson College from which he graduated in June 1864 and from which institution he subsequently received the degree of Master of Arts. His unusual achievements as a student while in college admitted him to the Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity, Alpha Chapter, the first in Pennsylvania.

He read law with the late Hon. John Cessna and was admitted to the bar May 25, 1864. He continued the practice of the law until a couple weeks ago, or a period of almost 48 years. He was a member of the bars of the Supreme and Superior Courts of the state and many years ago was admitted to practice in the District Court of the United States.

His advice was sought by a wide circle of clients and he enjoyed a lucrative Orphans' Court and office practice, though in later years he seldom appeared before a jury. Mr. Points never held or sought public office other than in local circles. He served as President of the School Board and as a member of Town Council with distinction. He was a man of unquestioned ability and of keen perception. As a lawyer he was pains-taking and thorough. He was a lover of the classics which he continued to read in the original throughout his life. His place in intellectual circles was one of distinction and his legal ability was held in high esteem by his fellow members of the Bar. He was one of the Corporators of the Dickinson Law School and was chairman of the examining committee of the local Bar for a number of years.

He is survived by his widow and four sons, George and William H., who were associated with him in business, and Clarence and Henderson; also by two brothers, Joshua and James A. Points, both of Bedford Township.

Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock a meeting of the Attorneys of the local Bar was held in the Court House, presided over by President Judge Joseph M. Woods, at which a number of his associates attested to his ability as a lawyer and his worth as a citizen.

The members of the Bar will meet at the Court House at 12:30 to receive the report of a committee appointed to prepare resolutions, after which they will attend the funeral in a body.

The funeral services will be held (Continued on Fifth Page.)

Blown to Pieces by Dynamite

Last Sunday morning while thawing dynamite at a coke oven at Riddisburg, Frank Elkman, aged about 20, was blown to pieces as the result of the explosion of the dynamite.

MENTIONED IN BRIEF

Many Items of Interest From Town and County.

Last Saturday Ross A. Stiver shipped a carload of fine horses to Newburg, N. Y.

S. C. Ritchey has been confined to his home the past week by an attack of la grippe.

B. F. Harclerode, who has been confined to the house for several weeks, is still very ill.

Mrs. John Yont of Yont's Station, who had a very severe nose bleed on Saturday of last week, is getting along nicely.

On Tuesday Agent L. D. Blackwelder received a carload of Ford runabouts, all of which are sold for February delivery.

Jordan Smith of Inglesmith and Lela A. Smith of Northcraft were granted a marriage license in Cumberland on Wednesday.

F. P. Duggan, District Deputy, of Lewistown, assisted by B. V. Monahan of Altoona, installed the officers of St. Thomas Council, No. 1439, K. of C., Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. J. H. Hardman of Hyndman was one of a number of relatives and friends who gave a delightful surprise to her brother, M. H. Potter, of Johnstown last Saturday evening.

A social was given Wednesday evening by St. Thomas Council, No. 1439, Knights of Columbus, in their rooms in the Ridenour Block. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the affair.

Liveryman Ross A. Stiver recently sold to C. C. Coon of Leander, N. Y., the fast pacer, Alma M., having a record of 2:20 1/4 at the age of four years, and about the same time purchased John Y., record 2:18 1/4.

H. Ellis Koontz, agent for the International Harvester Company, who will open his quarters in a part of the old skating rink about the first of February, will handle all kinds of farm implements and machinery and vehicles.

Justices of the Peace and Constables of the county who have not already received copies of the late fee bill may secure the same, without cost, by dropping us a card and asking for them; stating whether Justice's or Constable's is wanted.

The McCready Studio has been making several improvements pertaining to additional kinds of work. The principal improvements were the installation of an air brush equipment and a reproduction plant. This will give the community the opportunity of having all kinds of enlargements and copies made in Bedford.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Thomas on Tuesday were Uriah Thomas and A. E. Burkhardt, of Cumberland; Mrs. H. C. Lehman, Cresaptown, Md.; Mrs. Rachel Skelly, Eckhard, Md.; J. S. Radcliffe, Salsburg; Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Thomas and three sons, Meyersdale; Uriah and Albert May, Sulphur Springs, and Augustus Thomas, Hyndman.

Constables Bring Suit

The Constables of the county were somewhat surprised on Monday, when, having made their returns, they applied for their costs and received $2.50 and no mileage. They have been accustomed to receive $1.50 per day and six cents mileage each way, except those elected since the enactment of a law in 1909, who have been receiving $2.50 per day as provided by that act, and mileage.

The Commissioners' Solicitor has interpreted the act of April 23, 1909, as repealing the mileage clause of a former act and the Constables were all paid $2.50 on Monday. Not being satisfied, they banded themselves together and employed an attorney to bring the matter before the court and secure an opinion.

On the opinion of the proceedings on Monday we have no guess, but $2.50 certainly will not pay the expenses to Bedford and return of Constables living in remote sections of the county.

K. of P. Officers Installed

Monday night of this week District Deputy Grand Chancellor Charles H. Rush of Hyndman installed the officers of Bedford Lodge, Knights of Pythias, as follows: Chancellor Commander, Charles R. Beegle; Vice Chancellor, J. T. Budd; Master of Arms, A. D. Bowers; Inner Guard, C. O. Cessna; Outer Guard, H. P. Shires; Master of Work, O. S. McMullin; Prelate, William Brice, Sr.

Marriage Licenses

Frank Perrin of Liberty and Lillie Reed, of Hopewell.

William H. Oldham and Mary A. Darr, of West St. Clair.

J. Grant Slick and Bertha C. Waring, of St. Clairsville.

GUTHRIE'S CALL

Reorganizers' Chairman of State Committee Addresses

DEMOCRATS OF PENNA.

Asking That They Continue Work Done to Free Party from Grasp of Former Leaders.

State Headquarters, Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 10, 1912.

To the Democrats of Pennsylvania: At the primaries to be held April 13th next, you will be called upon to decide whether you will complete the reorganization of your party and take to yourselves the control of its affairs.

The National Committee, actuated by sympathy or controlled by the baldest technicality, has refused to seat the member selected by the State Committee as a part of the plan of reorganization. That National Committee has performed its last duty and will pass out of existence when the National Convention meets. A Mitchell Palmer will be a candidate for membership on the new committee which will conduct the campaign and manage the national affairs of the party for four years. That election will be by your delegates to the convention. If they choose him he will be seated, and his rights and yours cannot be defeated by a technical objection without the slightest merit.

The officers of the reorganized State Committee claim nothing for themselves but the right and duty to see that your will, as freely declared at the primaries to be so held, be honestly ascertained and declared and faithfully obeyed.

It is idle again to reiterate the causes which led to the reorganization or the manner in which it was carried out.

We believed then, and we believe now, that the committee had both the moral and legal right to take the action it took.

If you are satisfied with that action—if you believe that it was taken in your interest—represented your wishes and was necessary for the protection of your rights and enforcement of your will—then no one has any cause of complaint or had any right to interfere.

That is the question. It is for you to decide.

For years your party has been controlled, not led; for years a small number of so-called "leaders" have assumed for themselves the right to select your candidates and dictate the policies of your party for the promotion of their own interests.

By their actions—their so-called "leadership"—they have brought the party to such a point that in the election of 1910 it actually caused the election of the candidates of the Republican machine—imposing upon the state a continuation of the rule of that "corrupt combination masquerading under the name of the Republican party," which has so long oppressed, plundered and misgoverned it.

It had fallen to a point where it was capable only of evil.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Meetings of Both Interest and Value to

TILLERS OF THE SOIL

Held at Charlesville, New Enterprise and Fishertown—State Workers Deliver Practical Addresses.

Following is a report of proceedings of the Bedford County Farmers' Institutes, held January first and second at Charlesville; third and fourth at New Enterprise and fifth and sixth at Fishertown.

The devotional services at Charlesville were conducted by Rev. J. C. Knable and at New Enterprise by Revs. Detwiler and Holsinger. The sessions were presided over by County Chairman W. F. Biddle, who made a short address before each Institute, setting forth the object of the meetings and stating some facts necessary to make them a success.

In discussing Care and Management of the Orchard, F. H. Fassett declared that the conservation of moisture is the very keynote of successful orcharding. The orchardist must be a lover of nature and must be able to know by seeing his trees what food they need. Clean tillage conserves moisture better than the sod mulch and gives better tree growth and has 20% better sticking quality. Larger crops and good color are secured if left hang two weeks longer. The sod mulch system gives larger apples but offers an ideal breeding place for insect enemies and fungus diseases. Experiments show that clean tillage with good leguminous crops is very best method of orcharding.

Practical Methods of Improving the Soil was discussed by C. C. McCurdy. There are four necessary things to be considered in improving soil fertility. First, the drainage; second, acidity of soil; third, organic matter, and fourth, available plant food. These four things are at our command and deficiency may be corrected by careful methods. Drainage may be controlled in a measure, in some soils, by deep plowing. Soil acidity may be controlled by use of lime. Organic matter or humus may be supplied in form of barnyard manure or cover crops.

Getting Along on the Farm was discussed by George E. Hull. Become a specialist and stick to it. Do not go from one phase of agriculture to another with the rise and fall of prices. If we go on as we have been, in the next ten years we will be an importing instead of an exporting nation. If you have any produce to sell make it known; advertise your product.

COLDEST WEATHER ON RECORD

Sulphur Springs Wants Banner for Lowest Mark.

Within the memory of those now living this country has not been visited by colder weather than that of the past week. Bedford's record is 32 degrees below and similar readings were taken in many parts of the county, some outclassing Bedford, but Sulphur Springs "throws all in the shade."

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Sulphur Springs, Jan. 16, 1912.

Mr. Editor:

Dear Sir—Would it not be a good idea if you Bedfordites would get together and buy us a banner for what we did at Sulphur Springs last Saturday morning? You could not do it in your town and I have heard of no place east of Chicago that touched us.

At 7:30 Saturday morning, January 13, 1912, our thermometer stood at 44 degrees below zero.

Send the banner along or we will do better than 44 below.

Yours truly,

Robert G. Jones.

It seems a "warring of the forces of nature" that the thermometer should register 44 degrees below zero in a region where the very waters emit the fumes of sulphur. Suggestions are in order for suitable wording for the banner.

It is the purpose of the Commissioners to hurry the work along as rapidly as possible, and as soon as the necessary preliminaries are disposed of the actual work of construction will begin.

The Commissioners are to be commended for this action.

JACKSON DAYS SPEECH

Delivered before the Democratic Club of East St. Louis by

GOVERNOR JUDSON HARMON

Of Ohio on January 12—The Doctrines of the Great Leader in War and in Peace.

The defeat of Wellington's veterans at New Orleans by half their number of American volunteers was an extraordinary feat of arms. It wiped out the disgrace of Hull's surrender and the capture of Washington. And, though the battle was fought in ignorance that the treaty of peace had been signed, its results were most important in making secure our newly acquired western territory.

There has seldom been a campaign whose success was so largely due to its commander. But, while it is the anniversary of that battle which for nearly a century has brought citizens together for celebration all over the land, it is not Jackson, the General, that draws them so much as Jackson, the Democrat, though he is the only one of our Presidents, besides Washington, who has reached a place in the hearts of his countrymen by service of the highest order in both war and peace.

The republic could not be lasting until it rested on the affection and confidence of the entire citizen body, and this could not be if it were either planned or conducted on the theory that the government must somehow be made better than the common patriotism and intelligence are likely to produce.

This idea of the Hamiltonians was rejected by the constitution, which established "a broad and liberal democracy" but "compatible with ingrained respect for parliamentary methods and constitutional checks." But the first six Presidents all belonged to the class which that school thought the only safe and proper one to exercise authority. Even Jefferson, by birth, training, estate and social standing, had been counted among the aristocracy, if such a class had been recognized. This made him a more effective champion of true popular government, and he is one of many examples of honest and patriotic men with whom principle has prevailed over environment, natural inclination and even self interest.

But the evolution of government by the people was not complete. It would not be until, by the established processes, a President should be brought forth from what Lincoln called "the plain people," to whom opening the door of opportunity by release from arbitrary distinctions and authority meant more than it did to others.

In Jackson these first came fully into their own, not merely by his election, because if he had not acquitted himself with credit they would not soon have recovered from the loss of prestige. But they did not put forward, as their first contribution to the list of Chief Magistrates, a man untried in public life. He had served as prosecuting attorney, at the age of 21; then as a member of the convention which frames the constitution of Tennessee; then as her first representative in Congress, when only 29 years old. Soon after he was promoted to the Senate, and, resigning that, was for six years a Judge of the Supreme Court of his state. After the war he acted as territorial governor of Florida, and was again Senator from Tennessee.

If we did not know that modesty usually goes with true greatness it would seem strange that in spite of such long and varied civil experience Jackson, when the presidency was first suggested to him, declared that he was not fit for it. He was not yet emancipated from the belief which long precedent had created. He did not realize the true significance of the popular demand for his election. He did not foresee that he was to break down forever the class idea in America, open the way for other Presidents rising from lowly birth and adverse conditions, and thus make the nation strong and enduring by broadening the field of her supply of worthy and capable leaders. But none would have been quicker than he to denounce those who would seek to restore class distinctions and narrow the field of supply again, by making superior advantages of birth, education, culture, or experience in affairs qualifications for public duty.

If this first typically popular President were only a memory, the celebration of Jackson day would be most fitting; but the principles of Jefferson which this man of action had striking occasions to put in practice will always be associated with his name. And these have not become obsolete and never will. They constitute the code of political morality and wisdom which few will dispute but many forget or find pretexts for disregarding as new instances for their application arise. It is well for the country that one of its great parties is committed to them by the traditions and experience of more than a century.

It would be a reflection on the genius of the American people to claim that they cannot evolve from experience improvements in the methods by which their purposes are made known and carried out. But no plan can be devised which will dispense with capable, diligent and devoted service by public officials. There is no magic in any form or process. Good results in government, as in all other enterprises, are to be had only by intelligent study and hard work by those who conduct it, acting always with an eye single to the public good.

Jackson said: "Office is considered as a species of property; and government rather as a means for promoting individual interests than as an instrument created solely for the service of the people. Corruption in some and in others a perversion of correct feelings and principles divert government from its legitimate ends and make it an engine for the support of the few at the expense of the many."

The scheme of employing the taxing power to enrich individuals had made little progress in this country in Jackson's time. The civil war afforded the occasion to establish it and the succeeding period the opportunity to develop it to monstrous proportions. It feeds on its own offspring, the profuse expenditure of public funds which Jackson never failed to denounce and oppose, insisting always on "the observance of a strict and faithful economy."

Good citizens of all parties would have been quick to condemn the large yearly waste in the expenses of the House of Representatives by the creation and retention of needless positions and otherwise, but it took a Democratic House to expose and correct it. And it will require a Democratic administration to cut down the already enormous and increasing cost of all the departments of the government.

A distinguished Republican Senator has said that three hundred million dollars can be saved yearly by conducting the public business in a business way. That waste is four times the entire annual expenditure for all purposes of the State of Ohio and all its cities and sub-divisions.

The outlay of the Federal government has gone during three successive Republican administrations from one billion dollars every two years to more than a billion dollars each year, every cent of it taken from the earnings and resources of our citizens by taxation, most of it under tariff laws. This would consume in little more than six years the entire taxable property in Ohio, according to the recent appraisement at full value.

The committees of the House for the various departments, most of which have done nothing for years but pay salaries to their numerous clerks, messengers, etc., are all now doing exactly what Jackson urged on Congress eighty-two years ago, making "general and minute inquiry into the condition of the government with a view to ascertain what offices can be dispensed with, what expenses retrenched, and what improvements may be made in the organization of its various parts to secure the responsibility of public agents and promote efficiency."

And why should not the public business be managed on the same principles and with the same care and ability that citizens devote to their private business, especially when it involves the handling of such an enormous amount of money? Are there men who will be more earnest for themselves than for their country? Or do we too often fail to secure for the public service men with the practical ability which makes American enterprise foremost in all other directions? Or have we come to tolerate lower standards in the discharge of public duties?

But taking more than a billion dollars from the people for public purposes every year is a mild abuse of authority compared with arranging tariff taxes so as to enable favored manufacturers to collect from them a much larger sum for their own benefit, because, according to reliable estimates, for every dollar the government receives on articles imported the favored manufacturers collect three dollars above the normal prices of like articles from American consumers. This is in effect farming out the taxing power, one of the worst abuses known to history. It is high chief of all special privileges.

Jackson urged a gradual reduction of tariff taxes, especially on necessities, at a time when they were levied mainly for revenue. When recently we saw a President led, against his just inclination, to sign and praise a tariff bill which broke his own and his party's promises of reform, and then, in the face of his express admissions, veto bills for reductions passed by Congress under direct command of the voters of the entire country, men every where exclaimed, as they did in the days of vacillating Buchanan, "Oh, for one hour of Andrew Jackson!"

Now we find the business of the entire country disturbed and halting because this wretched system of favor taxes has brought its certain result. Unnatural competition was stimulated by these and then suppressed by the formation of trusts and combinations, in order that dividends might not cease on stock which was the capitalization of this special advantage. Instead of cutting off the source by reforming the tariff it was sought to control the stream by forbidding these trusts and combinations.

It is significant that the Sherman Anti-Trust Law and the McKinley Tariff Law were under consideration at the same time and passed at the same session. That tariff law went far beyond earlier laws in the bestowal of special favors. There was plain warning of its evil effect and the leaders did not dare face the country on it without a law to prevent stifling the competition from which great benefits were promised to the people. For the only element of harm in devices to restrain trade and secure monopoly lies in their effect on competition.

The financial and business troubles which broke out in 1893 were already brewing and did not subside until 1897, so that the effect of the McKinley bill was diminished during that period and did not attract general attention. But in 1897 a still worse tariff law was passed and soon after began to hatch its broods of trusts and combinations.

In the spring of that year the Supreme Court first enforced the anti-trust law. It was in a proceeding by the government against the Trans-Missouri Freight Association. Soon after it did the same in two other cases against The Joint Traffic Association and the Addyston and Other Pipe Companies. By these cases a Democratic Attorney General cleared the way for the general enforcement of the law, for the government had lost in the cases which preceded these. There were also pending at the expiration of his term investigations of the Beef Trust and others.

Though persistent mis-statements would justify it, this reference would not be made if it had a personal bearing only. But the Democratic party is concerned with the conduct of officials chosen through its agency. And it restores one's faith in the fairness of men that former Attorney General and Justice Moody has in public speeches given credit where credit was due.

But it appeared not to be the policy of the succeeding administration to proceed further against such concerns. So they grew and multiplied until one was reminded of the pictures where primitive man moved fearfully among magathauri and other monsters. And the country was made to believe for a time that this state of thing was "prosperity."

The financing of the securities of the huge concerns and speculation in them kept the money of the country from its proper channels and we had another panic from which we have not yet recovered. And every where the wholesome truth is recognized again which is so easily forgotten, that no real good ever comes to anybody from a policy founded on injustice and wrong.

It is said that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. In this instance it would have been worth a ton, for the Sherman law was distinctly a preventative measure.

So we are confronted with a delicate and difficult situation which it will tax our skill, wisdom and patience to handle so as to let the natural, healthy forces of industry and commerce get into action again, without needless injury to legitimate business in removing the obstructions.

The first step, surely, must be to redeem the tariff from its perverted use and restore it to its proper place as a revenue measure, by gradual reductions so that all concerned may have time to prepare for the change. With the chief cause of the trouble thus removed I believe we shall make our way safely back to normal conditions. But, as Jackson said, we must all "lay aside mere local considerations, and act with the patriotic determination to promote the great interests of the whole."

Millions for Anti-Tuberculosis Work

Money to the amount of over $14,500,000 was spent in anti-tuberculosis work during the year 1911, according to the third annual statement of expenditures in the war against consumption issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The statement is based largely on reports received from anti-tuberculosis agencies in all parts of the United States.

By far the largest item of expense was that for treatment in sanatoria and hospitals, and for the erection of institutions of this kind, over $11,800,000 being spent for this purpose alone. Dispensaries for the examination and treatment of tuberculosis spent $850,000, and associations and committees in their educational campaign against tuberculosis spent $500,000. The remaining $1,300,000 was spent for treatment in open-air schools, prisons and hospitals for the insane, and local boards of health against tuberculosis.

An amusing anecdote is related of the late Hungarian statesman Tisza, who when one day dining at the Hofburg with the Austrian emperor placed a large pear upon his plate at dessert.

The emperor remarked to his minister that cold fruit to a hot dinner was injurious to the digestion. Tisza replied, "The stomach of a Hungarian premier, your majesty, is obliged to be a strong one."

Youth Not Discouraged.

Aspiring to be an aviator Florio Colombo, seven years old, residing on the outskirts of New York, the other day rigged up an umbrella and determined to try flying. Carrying his father's umbrella he climbed up a cherry tree in the yard of his home preparatory to descending in parachute fashion. When he reached the topmost branch of the tree Florio balanced himself, opened the umbrella and jumped. The umbrella held for a few seconds and then collapsed, dropping him to the ground with great force. The would-be aviator is now in the hospital suffering fractures and severe bruises as the result of his first experience in the science of aviation. However, the ingenious youngster declares he will eventually become a famous aviator.

Two Telethas.

The preliminary hearing of Charles Mowery, charged with the murder of his wife, was interrupted twice the other afternoon to allow Justice C. J. Welch to perform a marriage ceremony, says the Kansas-City Journal.

While Mrs. Teletha Sharp was on the witness stand the second happy pair came in.

"What are your names?" Justice Welch asked.

"Teletha Smith and Marion L. Stowell," they replied.

"Funny," said the judge a few minutes later. "Never heard the name Teletha before in my life until today, and here are two women with that name."

Overflowing Manuscript Bearer

Weather permitting, and sometimes when the weather did not permit, Mr. Greeley wore his famous white overcoat, writes Hugh Thompson in the Scrap Book. It was not exactly white, but of a yellowish hue. By this coat he was as well known as by any other physical token, and it distinguished him in a crowd or on the street as much as the celebrated white plume of Henry of Navarre indicated the presence of that gentleman in a melee.

One very characteristic thing about Mr. Greeley—and it fits into a description of him—was that he was a sort of overflowing manuscript bearer. The pockets of every garment he wore were stuffed and crowded with manuscripts, books and papers. Even his famous beaver hat was full of sheets.

"I have washed every window in my house myself and all in one forenoon," said a young woman who is noted for knowing the easiest and quickest ways to do housework. "And, what's more, I did not use a drop of water. No slopping around with wet rags for me."

"How do you manage it?" asked the friend.

"Just this way," was the reply. "I buy a pint of denatured alcohol, which will wash two dozen windows. Then I simply put a little on the cloth and rub the windows briskly a moment. The dirt comes off in a twinkling and the windows are left clean and bright. It takes just one-half the time and is only one-quarter the work of the old soap and water way."—New York Sun.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Communication From Our Regular Correspondent

SUBSTITUTE "TAX" FOR "TARIFF"

The Territory of the Packers—The National Conventions—Live Clause of Canadian Treaty.

Washington, January 13.—President Taft has just taken an action that is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars annually to the paper trust, by refusing to remove the tax from print paper and wood pulp.

When the reciprocity bill was passed a provision was tacked to it providing for the free admission of print paper and wood pulp from Canada. This provision became law whether the reciprocity act was agreed to by Canada or not. Therefore, although reciprocity failed, print paper and wood pulp are now admitted free from Canada.

As soon as this provision became law, five nations which ship paper to America, and which have treaties with this country in which we agreed to extend to them the same concessions that we extend to "the most favored nation," demanded their treaty-guaranteed right to also send print paper and wood pulp into the United States free of duty.

"Since you have given a particular concession to Canada, you must, under our treaties, extend the same concession to us," declared the paper producing countries of Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany and Austria-Hungary. Obviously, this argument is unanswerable.

However, the President has announced, through the Treasury Department, that a tax will be collected as heretofore on all print paper imported from any other country than Canada. The President advises the European nations to appeal to the Customs Court of Appeals, which, it is declared, is only a subterfuge. President Taft has declared he is willing to concede the justice of demands for cheaper paper, but when the opportunity offers, his acts refute his words, and show that he is willing to violate treaties with five friendly nations rather than to give even the slightest concessions to freer trade.

The tariff on print paper is to all practical ends a tax on intelligence, because in this day and age the great mass of the people receive their education on public questions through the newspapers. With print paper practically controlled by a trust, the price has been systematically boosted, so as to work a hardship on the prosperous publishers, and to make print paper nigh on to prohibitive to many of the small, country publishers whose earnings are not any too great at best.

Meanwhile there is pending a bill introduced by Senator Heyburn, which proposes to repeal the Canadian reciprocity act. Having been rejected by Canada, the law is dead without being repealed. But if the act is repealed, the live added section providing for free print paper would also be repealed, and the old tax on paper even from Canada would be restored. Since the tax on Canadian print paper has been repealed, 81 independent paper companies, aggregating capitalization of eighty-three million dollars, have started up in opposition to the trust, bringing reductions in prices already, and arousing the hostility of the paper trust.

A Live Suggestion

Why would it not be a good idea for all Democrats, everywhere, to hereafter taboo the use of the word "tariff," and in its place use the term "tax," which is what a tariff really is?

If every Democratic writer and speaker would use the term "The Payne-Aldrich tax bill," instead of "The Payne-Aldrich tariff bill," from now until the polls close on November 5, there need be little conjecture as to the outcome of the election. Who doubts but that if the Dingley tariff bill had been known and referred to generally as the Dingley tax bill, and the McKinley tariff bill as the McKinley tax bill, and the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill as the Payne-Aldrich tax bill, the Republican party would not be in power today.

The word "tariff" is too indefinite. There are hundreds of thousands of men who may be brought to believe that it would be to their advantage in some indirect, mysterious way to vote for a tariff, but who could not be cajoled or coerced into the conviction that it is to their individual interest to vote to put an enormous tax on everything they eat, wear, and use.

If Democratic editors will make it a standing order in their offices to substitute the word "tax" for "tariff," in every article having to do with protection, and if every stump speaker will carry on a similar crusade, and if the movement will be made nation-wide, the problem of reversing Republican victories at the polls will have been solved.

Think this over!

"Our Territory"

One of the Chicago packers, in the trial now going on at Chicago, complained that "Swift infringed on our territory." The disputed territory was in New York and Vermont, and the question naturally arises: How did that territory, or any other territory, come to be the exclusive property of Swift or anybody else?

The answer is simple. Because Swift and the other packers, after driving the butchers in the local communities in New York and Vermont out of business, by underselling them, divided up the territory thus seized and called it their own. Of course, it was theirs! Having stifled all competition, both from within and without the district, they were left free to advance prices of meat to suit the amount of dividends desired, and to call the territory "their own."

The Answer

"Why talk about placing any of the necessities of life on the free list?" is the cry that goes up from the Standpatters every now and then. "If this were done," they ask, "how could the government raise revenue to meet its expense?"

This is how: By levying an income tax and an inheritance tax, as does every first class nation on the face of the globe, save the United States of America.

The Two Conventions

Newspaper men hereabouts are warm under the collar over the selection of Baltimore by the Democrats in which to hold their national convention on June 25. The men who write the political "dope" of the Capitol were most generally for a middle-west city in view of the fact that the Republicans had selected Chicago. To jump from Chicago to Baltimore, with only a day or two intervening between the two conventions, they say will deprive the Democrats of much advertising as the eyes of the country will be on Chicago for days preceding and following the convention in that city.

Had St. Louis or Chicago come across with anything like the amount offered by Baltimore, $100,000, the city on the Patapsco would not have had a "look in," in sporting vernacular. But a hundred thousand dollars to start a campaign on, looked mighty big to the practical politicians of the "unterrified" and when St. Louis flatly refused to give more than half the amount Baltimore was an easy winner.

It has been a generation since Baltimore has had a national convention, Horace Greeley being the last presidential candidate to receive a nomination in the southern metropolis and what happened to him is known to everybody. Baltimore will outdo itself to give the delegates and visitors the time of their lives, for the hospitality of its citizens is proverbial, but the Monumental City gets pretty blamed hot in late June and with a six-cornered fight on for the nomination it will be scorching by the time the convention decides who the Democratic standard-bearer shall be.

Weed in Charge of Savings Banks Theodore L. Weed, chief clerk of the Post Office Department, has been appointed general director of the postal savings system, with a salary of $5,000 a year. This is a most important post, Mr. Weed being thus placed in control of 50,000 savings banks throughout the country and doing business of more than a million dollars a week.

Here is another example of the rapid rise of a young man through the stenographer-typewriter route. Mr. Weed was born in Norwich, Conn., 37 years ago but his parents came to Washington while he was a mere lad, and his education was obtained in the public schools of this city and he therefore may be considered a Washington boy. Mr. Weed entered the Government service a little more than ten years ago, and has risen rapidly, until now he occupies one of the most important positions in the Government service outside of the Cabinet.

A Lesson in Grammar

A New York man when he visited Boston for the first time was undecided at what hotel to stop. As he wandered up Summer street from the South station, he determined to inquire for a hotel. So he accosted a fine appearing man who was coming toward him confident that from such a citizen he would be sure to get the very best advice as to his choice of a stopping place.

"What would be a good place to stop at?" he inquired of the stranger. "Just before you reach the at," was the disconcerting reply.—Cosmopolitan.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear through on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two-thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Robert Grant, who has been for years a judge of probate in Boston, will discuss, in the February installment of "The Conviction of a Grandfather" in Scribner's swollen fortunes and inheritance taxes; another topic will be the disappearance of classical culture from the newest generation.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Business Good in Zero Weather—Pave Pitt Street.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 15, 1912. I hope it is not too late to wish all the readers of The Gazette a happy and prosperous New Year: taking that for granted, the wish is made, and let us one and all try to excel in every good thing during 1912. I have made but one resolution and I can hear, even though many miles away, many wonder in their own minds what Dad's resolution is.

I have had ten days of very cold weather. The wind whistled about my ears and they sang with glee because I did not have them protected from Jack Frost. I got up a few mornings ago at Weston, W. Va., and some one said mercury was thirty degrees below zero. I did not believe him, hence I hid to see for myself and sure I found it just as he had said. On Sunday the thermometers showed six degrees below zero, which was a decided improvement on the Saturday forenoon record. At the Hope Gas Company's office at Hastings Station, 12 degrees was shown. All trains are even now running from three to four hours late, and only those who were compelled to go ventured out, as there was no telling when or where one might land. Dad was one of those who never has stayed indoors because of the inclemency of the weather and his courage did not fail him this Saturday a. m. His business was good and when the shades of evening overspread the land he looked up his record and found that he had with all the bad storm in his way sold seven thousand packages of Fort Bedford and Happy Bill P-nuts and four hundred thirty-five boxes of P-nut candy, salting all down with eighteen tin pails of horehound P-nuts, the same to cure the colds which those going after the other items were liable to catch. Thus ended a very cold and snowy day.

In all this country we have natural gas. No carrying in coal or wood, or carrying ashes out; but just turn the screw and put a lighted match near the touch off and in a very few moments we have it warm and comfortable. I wonder what is to hinder Bedford from having natural gas. They have it at Cumberland and it would not cost so overly much to bring it from Cumberland to Bedford. I think I shall make some inquiry along this line, and I would not be surprised if by another fall many homes in Bedford would be equipped for natural gas. We could use it for heating and lighting as well.

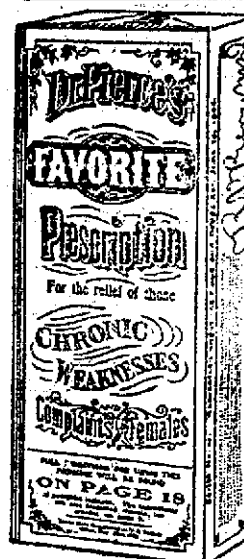

I find that the selection of Baltimore as the place for holding the next Democratic convention is very generally thought of as a good move and it will be especially agreeable to the Democracy of the South. It will be the sixth time that the nominee has been named in the Monumental City and I am told that it is a notable fact that two of the standard bearers who were called there were elected. This augurs much for the success of the man who shall be named next summer as the party's candidate for President. 'Tis true that more successful candidates have been selected and named in Baltimore than any other city. West Virginians are especially pleased at the selection of Baltimore for the convention. As it is the nearest city in the South in which a national convention could be held, and the nearest one north of the M. & D. line would have been Bedford, Pa. Never mind boys, another convention of equal importance will be held in ye ancient town where once Washington rusticated. The atmosphere of the town and county will be pure and the delegates will breathe it and sniff our mountain dew (if Judge Woods changes his mind), performing their duties as they could not do elsewhere. Many a political slate has been made under the wide and spreading elms of Bedford Springs and I dare any one to cast a shadow of darkness over any of the candidates which were selected there. Ask J. Wy Boor if this is not true.

I should like very much to see Pitt Street paved before the meeting of the above referred to convention, and to hurry this along let me suggest to the city fathers that they add 5 per cent. to the taxes of each and every one in the town for the furtherance of the paving. I am well aware that this will hit me as hard as any one in the town, but I remember that a shroud has no pockets; so what's the dit; let the good work be pushed along.

Yours truly,

M. P. Heckerman.

CARNegie ON THE STAND

The testimony of Andrew Carnegie before the Stanley investigating committee was so voluminous and dealt with so many things that were irrelevant that many tired of reading it. But despite the columns occupied by questions and answers that were immaterial, a few things were brought out that are of interest to the public.

Among these was the declaration of the great iron master that iron and steel have no tariff protection, and he, having been the central figure in the iron business prior to the formation of the United States Steel Company to which he sold a considerable part of his stock in the former partnership, ought to know something of what he was talking about.

Another thing of interest was the admission that he had contributed a large sum of money to the campaign fund to defeat William McKinley because he was opposed to his policy of expansion or imperialism, but his memory, which did not serve him well in framing his answers to numerous questions, seemed particularly blunt when he was asked whether he did not stop payment on $10,000 of the amount when he saw the possibility of getting Philander C. Knox into the Cabinet. The questions asked and the answers, incomplete and evasive though they were, made it possible for one to read between the lines that there was some connection between the stopping of the $10,000 check and Mr. Knox's being admitted to the Cabinet.

It is a matter of history and of fact that the United States Steel Corporation was not formed until Mr. Knox was in possession of a Cabinet portfolio.

His testimony to the effect that he knew little of the application of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law but supposed it to apply to railroads has caused many a smile and his revealing some of his business methods may lead lexicographers to order their publishers to cease work on latest editions until they have an opportunity to revise the definition of the word philanthropist.

We have been appealed to in the interest of "harmony," to surrender the trust committed to us, upon the assurance that the "old leaders" will then select new officers and representatives who will be more satisfactory to the people.

It has been suggested to us that if we will abandon our position, either openly or by a submission of our rights to the decision of the Dauphin County courts, the delegates to the National Convention can be agreed upon, provided that there is no attempt to instruct or commit them to any presidential candidate in advance of the meeting of the convention.

This was, of course, refused. We will not, and cannot, without disgrace, surrender the trust your representatives have committed to us, or barter away your rights.

It is for you, and you alone, to decide whether or not the action taken by the State Central Committee was right.

It is for you to select your own delegates to the National Convention.

You have the right and the power to declare your preference for President; no one has any right to prevent your exercising it, and no one should attempt to do so.

Through the power committed to us we will be able to secure an honest return and declaration of your will as expressed at the approaching primary.

The representatives of the old "leaders" say that unless their demands are conceded there will be two conventions and that no matter how badly beaten they may be at the primaries they will put up a ticket and endeavor, through the aid of the Dauphin County court, to seize the Democratic column on the ballot and thereby defeat the real Democratic candidates, thereby giving the Republican machine another victory in the state and weakening the Democratic majority in congress.

The old policy of rule or ruin.

To prevent them from having the "sham" of an excuse for holding a "rump" convention, we have offered to unite with Mr. Ritter and his committee in a joint call for a convention, the roll to be made up under joint supervision, placing on it the names of those shown to be elected by the official certificates, and no others, and to be called by a temporary president, also jointly selected, and leave to the convention thus organized the decision of all questions.

Further than this we cannot and will not go.

We will not surrender the power we now have to secure an honest declaration of the result of the primaries.

We will not agree to barter away your rights or to enter into any scheme to frustrate your action or prevent a declaration of your preference in the choice of a candidate for President.

The suggestions made to us would lead to a restoration of the old system of dictation and control, with the old "leaders" concealed behind new names, but exercising the same power. This would leave the party more hopelessly divided than before.

It is for you to say whether you will rule or be ruled. When you have asserted your rights and established your power, you can choose for yourself without dictation from any one.

Very respectfully,
GEO. W. GUTHRIE,
Chairman.

B. T. E. A. Meeting

The sixth regular meeting of the Broad Top Educational Association was held in the Danahy High School building on Saturday, January 13.

The program was very interesting. A talk was given by Prof. Fluke of Saxton, who later extended an invitation to the association to hold a joint session with the association of Liberty Township and Saxton. The invitation was accepted and a committee was appointed to arrange a program.

Miss Chrissie Smith, who visited schools in Harrisburg and Duncan, rendered an interesting report of her observations in the schools of the two cities.

An instrumental duet was played by Misses Taylor and Barton.

Prof. J. Leon Mauer was elected to visit some high schools and report on High School Work in Other Districts at the next meeting, which will be held February 10.

Dr. Byron C. Pratt delivered his lecture on American Morals in the M. E. Church at Danahy in the evening.

On account of the extreme cold very few people turned out, but those who did were amply repaid by hearing one of the most masterful pleas for clean morals and good moral training ever delivered. No one who hears Dr. Pratt can leave the auditorium without feeling that he has been benefited by listening.

The next number on the course is "The Orphean Musical Club," a vocal and instrumental quartet who come highly recommended. One of the number is a cartoonist who draws pictures illustrating the songs as they are sung. This company will be here on February 23, Friday night.

RUGS RUGS RUGS

Pate's RUG AND FURNITURE Store

Odd Fellows' Building, Bedford, Pa.

Rugs have so taken the place of carpets, that we have built three large rug display racks, showing the largest assortment of sizes and patterns of Rugs ever shown in Bedford County. And as to prices, our early purchase in Philadelphia and New York has placed us in a position to offer you these rugs at a saving (together with the very narrow margin of profit that we are satisfied with) of from 20 to 40 per cent. We are in earnest when we say, if you are needing a floor covering this spring, do not buy before you have compared the prices and quality of our rugs with those of any other dealer, far or near. We will not deem it trouble to show you these beautiful rugs at their very low prices, nor will we nag at you to buy, but will leave it to your own good judgment whether or not our statements as to prices and quality are true.

Below we give you the grades, sizes and prices of a few of the many good values we are offering:

Mr. Williams jumped into the water to save himself. He quickly got the front part of his sled out and went home as fast as he could. The people did not know whether the horses were running off with John or whether John was running off with the horses. It certainly was a cold day for a bath.

Our farmers have filled their ice houses with a fine quality of ice, and there appears to be plenty yet.

PAPER BAG COOKING

Great System Perfected by M. Soyer, Famous London Chef.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR PAPER BAG COOKING.

By M. Soyer, Chef of Brooks' Club, London.

I do not claim for the paper-bag system of cooking that it can cook everything. It is evident that tea must still be made in the teapot. Generally speaking, we may waive our claim to having mastered the difficulty with respect to soups, although I have made beef tea with excellent results. The following is a list of articles that may in the meantime be avoided:

Soup (except beef tea), omelette, scrambled eggs, jam (except in small quantities), Scotch kale, beans, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, artichokes, macaroni or kindred Italian pastes.

The success of the system depends entirely upon how it is carried out. Good cooking requires time, care, attention to detail, taste and a temperature suited to the particular dish being cooked. While the paper-bag system is labor and time saving, as well as affording more nutritive and appetizing effects than the present, it does not abrogate any of the rules that apply to efficient work at the kitchen-table.

The Bag.

Specially prepared bags should be used. Without them the method cannot be practiced with assurance of success. The bag should be made of materials that guarantee its purity. It should be odorless, and its purity a guarantee that nothing injurious can possibly be imparted from it to the food cooked in the bag.

Before using the bags—

(1) Select one that "fits" the food intended to be cooked:

(2) Grease slightly the inside of the bag, except in the case of vegetables or when water is added. For beginners it is advisable. Butter, lard or dripping may be used.

(3) When the food has been prepared for the bag, place the same on the table and lift the uppermost edge of the bag while you insert the contents.

(4) Fold the mouth of the bag two or three times and fasten with a clip. Strong wire paper-clips, obtainable of any stationer, answer the purpose. It is desirable to fold the corners of the bag so as to secure as near as possible a hermetical closing.

The Oven.

Practically any oven will do. Paper-bag cooking is as well suited to a gas stove as it is to a coal oven, an electricity cooker or oil stove, always provided the necessary heat is secured. The size of the oven makes no difference to the cooking, only to the size of the article.

Before placing the bag with its contents into a gas oven, the gas should be lighted at least eight minutes beforehand. The average oven heat should not be less than 200 degrees Fahrenheit, and when the bag is put into the oven this ought to be reduced in eight minutes after to 170 degrees. To find out the correct degree a thermometer, of course, is the most accurate method; but experience will soon teach the cook what is required, and the color assumed by a piece of paper placed in the oven will at once tell whether it is too hot or too cold.

In the case of coal-heated stoves with solid shelves a wire broiler should be used. This should be placed on the shelf with the bag containing the food. It is necessary to emphasize the fact that, except in the case of pies, no dish should be used.

How to Know when the Food is Cooked.

If the time-table is adhered to, the bag may be taken out of the oven in confidence that the food is well cooked. But if from any cause the heat declines, it is very easy to find out whether the food is properly cooked. Except in the case of vegetables, a little hole can be made in the bag by which the food can be seen and judged as to whether it is cooked or not. This will not militate against the cooking of the food in the slightest. In many articles, however, a slight touch of the bag will indicate to an ordinary cook whether the bag is ready to be served. A prick with a needle is another method that may be adopted. But a peculiarly favorable feature of paper-bag cooking is that if the food is left five or ten minutes in the bag in the oven longer than the specified time on my table, the food will not be spoiled. There is little chance of over-cooking.

Dangers to Be Avoided.

Cooking generally has its dangers, like other occupations. It is the beauty of this system that the dangers are reduced to a minimum. One does not require every now and then to open the oven door "to see how the roast is getting on." The oven is doing its work, because the whole force of the heat is playing upon the bag and ensuring every part of the food being properly penetrated. Nevertheless, care should be exercised when opening the oven.

Care, again, should be exercised in taking the bag out of the oven. A plate should be placed gently under the bag about a couple of inches, and the bag drawn completely on to the plate with the fingers. The bag should be ripped open from the top and the fragments thrown at once away.

MY EXPERIMENTS WITH PAPER BAG COOKERY.

By Martha McCulloch Williams.

When Soyer's paper bag method of cooking was first brought to my attention by friends, who, rightly or wrongly, seem to have a high opinion of my abilities as a cook, I admit that I was skeptical of its practicability. Indeed, I was more than that—I was rather firm in my belief that it could not prove out. But I was induced to put the system to a trial—and, lo and behold!—the very first trial made me an enthusiastic follower of M. Soyer. Since then I have been doing all my cooking by the Soyer method, and each succeeding day more than ever convinces me that any woman, simply by following Soyer's general directions, and using that good common sense and care which are essential to all good cooking, can master the Soyer paper bag method of cooking in a very short time, and will find it a great boon both to herself and to all the members of her household.

Following M. Soyer's general directions for paper bag cookery, I speedily learned that there are sundry commandments to be observed while pursuing his method of cooking.

The first and greatest of these is to get the right bag, which is made specially for cooking, is paraffined, odorless even when crumbly-crisp, sanitary and to be had in sizes big enough to hold a Thanksgiving turkey, or tiny enough for a single chop.

Next, nearly as important, is to grease the bag inside liberally, using butter, lard, oil, drippings or a very fat rind of bacon.

Further, proportion your bag-size to what it is destined to hold. The closer the fit of bag and contents, the better, and the more even and compact the lay of the food, the less trouble in handling.

Use a footed wire broiler, or very open grid-iron, in the oven. All paper bag cooking is done in the oven. If a gas oven, it must be lighted eight to ten minutes before putting in the food and kept at blazing heat until the bag corners scorch lightly; then slacken the heat a third or even half throughout the rest of the time of cooking.

Be sure to lay the bags in the oven with the seam uppermost, especially if water has been put inside. Seams will steam open now and then—if the opening is downward there will be a leakage and much bother.

Finally, it is important to remember that all manipulation, seasoning and flavoring of food must be attended to before it is put in bags. There can be no stirring or tossing in the course of paper bag cooking. Nor must a bag be opened at any time during cooking; such action is absolutely unnecessary if directions are faithfully followed.

A PAPER BAG DINNER.

By M. Soyer, Chef of Brooks' Club, London.

Roast Beef, Round, Ribs, or Sirloin.—Grease well with drippings, but do not season. Put in bag, lay on a wire broiler, and cook in a moderate oven. For a three-pound joint allow forty-five minutes; for seven-pound, one hour and twenty minutes.

Lima Beans.—Take a quart of Lima beans, add two ounces of butter, four ounces of diced ham, a little sugar and salt, a good teaspoonful of flour, and a few sweet herbs to taste. Put in a paper bag with half a pint of water, seal up, and cook for an hour in a moderate oven.

Baked Potatoes.—Thoroughly wash twelve good-sized potatoes. Make a few small slits in them, but do not peel. Place in a paper bag, with one tablespoonful of water. Seal and cook thirty-five to fifty minutes, according to size.

Tomatoes.—Place six tomatoes in boiling water for twenty-five seconds. Peel, butter your paper bag, put in tomatoes with salt, pepper, a suspicion of sugar, and a small piece of butter. Put the bag on the broiler after sealing, and cook for twelve minutes in a hot oven.

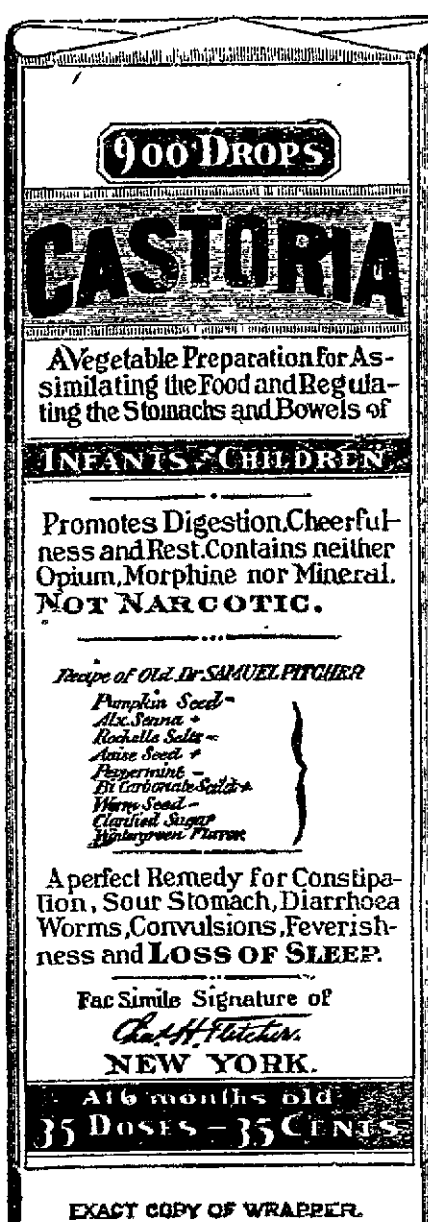

Apples à la Duchesse.—Wash and dry ten large apples. Core them, put stick-cinnamon—only a bit—in the place of each core, and pour over them a tablespoonful of rum. Put in a buttered bag, and bake on the broiler thirty minutes. When quite done, dish up, remove the cinnamon, and fill the centers with jam—strawberry, raspberry, or apricot. Cover with stiffly whipped cream, sprinkle with chopped nuts, and serve, or set on ice till wanted. Use sweet apples and let them cool before adding the jam and cream.

Light the gas range eight minutes before beginning to cook, or open the draughts so the coal range will be hot. Put the roast on first, upon the lowest shelf. Put the apples upon the upper shelf, so as to leave room for the tomatoes beside them. As soon as the tomatoes are done, remove, set the bag in a plate, and stand where it will keep hot. Put the Lima beans in the vacant place—and when the apples are done, remove them and put on the potatoes. Thus, you will be able to have the cooking come out even, also to chill and season your apples before sitting down to table.

Guard the Family Health

Health is often endangered by unsanitary cooking utensils. Physicians have found that cancer is caused by enamel ware chipping off and irritating the stomach.

If you have children or invalids in the family beware of cheap cooking utensils that crack, scale, peel off, tarnish or rust. Disease germs lurk in the worn places and there is further danger of tainting the food. Health is too precious to take risks with it.

Be safe. Use

Madagascar Idols.

Madagascar natives have a strange idol. It is a piece of wood covered with silk and attached to a wire which the priests pull in a certain way. The god performs movements in all directions, to the great terror of the faithful, who believe it is really alive. The priests dwell in houses of wood, as the gods will have neither stone or brick. To distinguish themselves from the other natives the faithful wear their hair rolled in curl papers like women and keep it in the shape of a horn by means of pins.

RED CROSS EXCLUDED

Has No Rights in Civil War—Pathetic Illegal Use in China.

When the framers of the Treaty of Geneva, which provides for the protection of agents of the Red Cross in war, had completed their task they had omitted all mention of one important question which has recently been a cause of uncertainty and some embarrassment. This question relates to the function of the Red Cross in civil war.

The treaty, in fact, does not provide any method by which the Red Cross may help to ameliorate the horrors of civil war. When two governments are at war with each other, if both are signatories to the treaty, both are bound to protect the agents of the Red Cross and respect the Red Cross flag. If only one of the warring governments has signed the treaty, neither is required to respect the Red Cross flag or agents. In such a case, the two countries by special agreement may bind themselves to observe the rules of the treaty and thus avail themselves of the humane administrations of the Red Cross.

In case of civil war or revolutionary movements, however, the revolutionaries are not only not signers of the treaty of Geneva, but as they have no recognized status, they are held to be incapable of entering into a responsible agreement concerning the Red Cross with the government which they are trying to overthrow. Thus no way is left open by which the Red Cross may legally and safely give its kindly services in time of civil war.

During the progress of the recent revolution in Mexico, the American Red Cross offered its services to the Mexican government, but its offer could not be accepted. As a result, the American Red Cross confined its activities to the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, caring for sick and wounded soldiers and destitute refugees who were brought across the border or taking the risk of venturing over the line, without official protection, when the demands of humanity were imperative, as was the case at Juarez, Nogales, Tia Juana and elsewhere.

The importance of rigid governmental control of the use of the Red Cross is well illustrated by the present condition in China where no official supervision of such use exists. Many different unauthorized organizations are using the emblem in the hope of protecting the lives and property of their members. Since no restrictions on this use are enforced, the result is that the emblem has lost its sacred character in a farcical and pathetic scramble for a protection which it cannot give. The following extract from a private letter from Wuchang, China, bears directly upon this point:

"All sorts of people are using the flag and the badge who have no right to do so and many seem to think that a subscription entitles them to full immunity and protection. The Red Cross is so badly abused by misuse through people bringing their valuables to be stored under its aegis, that presently it is feared the whole population will hoist the sign at the last extremity as a last resort.

At the Ninth International Red Cross Conference, to be held in Washington next May, this omission of the Treaty of Geneva to provide for Red Cross operations in civil war will probably be one of the important topics for discussion. Representatives of forty or more countries will participate in this conference.

THE DANGER OF LA GRIPPE

Is its fatal tendency to pneumonia. To cure your la grippe coughs take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. R. E. Fisher, Washington, Kas., says: "I was troubled with a severe attack of la grippe that threatened pneumonia. A friend advised Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and I got relief after taking the first few doses. I took three bottles and my la grippe was cured." Get the genuine, in the yellow package. Ed. D. Heckerman.

New to It

They walked up to the desk of the Getty House in Yonkers, both suspiciously new clothes. He took a pen from the hand of Clerk Maling with a careless, indifferent air and signed with a flourish. It was just his name. Maling looked at him in surprise and waited. Finally he said:

"Aren't you going to register her, too?"

The man answered, "Of course," and with another flourish he added, "and wife."

The bride looked at him reproachfully, murmuring: "What did you suppose I hit you in the ribs for?"

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently."—Hon. John R. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala.

Among Dr. Wiley's more recent deliverance is one urging the people to eat more "common yellow sugar." In the other years we used to call it "brown" sugar, and it was the only sort the common people used ordinarily. In those early days "a lump of white sugar" was considered a luxury.

Spraying and Marketing of Fruit was taken up by F. H. Fassett. He advised the securing of a spraying outfit necessary to do our own spraying, then know what we are spraying for and go at it in the right way. Secure a lime-sulphur hydrometer. In preparing the spray, divide the decimal of the concentrate by the decimal of spray desired to get number of gallons of water to add. There is an element of danger in the use of oil. Use it only on a clear, sunny day, with a very fine nozzle, never holding the nozzle at one place until oil drips off. The oil does its work immediately on touching the scale. In order to do effective work in combating the codling moth we must be at an elevation that we may see into the calyx of apples where 95% of the moth enter, and fill it with the poison. The second spraying should be done in from 35 to 40 days. The codling moth completes its life cycle in about 55 days. In marketing fruit, he pleaded for honesty in packing. Make it the same all the way through; have a reliable packer to pack them. Put on each package your name and address, also the name of variety. Spend a week in Philadelphia or New York and study market conditions; see your own apples opened and sold; it will help you to do better packing and thereby secure for you a better market and more money for your fruit.

J. H. Peachy discussed The Problem of Education for the Country Children. The most important thing of today is the education of the boy. Get the home right, the school right and the farm will be right; all else will be right. Boys and girls get their first impressions in the home. We are running away too rapidly from the three C's. Three great essentials in a complete education are Character, Culture and Citizenship. School directors may all be good men morally, good business men, good farmers, making a success in their vocation, but poor school directors from the fact that they have never studied the school question. Instances were cited in which directors were influenced by creed, politics, lodge, and even have been known to favor teachers because their father was a heavy taxpayer. Schools were instituted for children, not for teachers. Too many of our trained teachers go off to the towns. We must put enough money in the rural schools to hold them. Think of money paid for school tax as an investment not as a tax. The little red schoolhouse has outlived its usefulness and the remedy beyond a doubt is the centralized school, which is working admirably in many places.

The Essentials of Successful Potato Growing was discussed by C. C. McCurdy, who held that the soil must be well supplied with humus, which is best secured by applying barnyard manure to the sod where you wish to plant potatoes, a year or two previous. Plow in the fall unless your soil is of a nature that will leach or a hillside that will wash. Disc thoroughly both ways in the spring. The ground must be in the best possible shape to conserve the moisture. Plant when the soil and weather conditions are favorable, getting a good, even distribution of the seed 16 to 18 inches apart in the row and the rows not less than 3 1/2 feet apart. Experiments show deep planting, four to five inches in the average soil, is best. Begin cultivating early and continue until almost time to raise them. The time has come when it is useless to Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or setting, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.
You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

try to raise potatoes at a profit without spraying them thoroughly two or three times.

J. H. Peachy was very enthusiastic on the subject of alfalfa, which he considers the greatest plant in existence today because of its feeding value and because of the number of tons that can be grown to the acre. Alfalfa with corn silage makes very nearly a balanced ration for a cow. You may possibly have to add a little of the by-product of the mill. Pigs and breeding stock can be kept over winter on alfalfa with a very little corn. It has been proven that alfalfa may be grown on a variety of soils if the soil conditions are made right. Inoculate with soil from a nearby alfalfa field. Test the seed before sowing; if possible test before buying. Never cut alfalfa until young shoots have started from the crown.

Home-Made Silos, When and How to Fill, was taken up by George E. Hull. Place the silo convenient to the feeding alley. Mr. Hull has three of the home-made silos on his farms and contemplates building another. He thinks the home-made silo is as good, and has some features that excel, the commercial silo and can be built at a cost below the commercial. The ordinary farmer who possesses a little ingenuity can construct one from his own timber, costing but very little more than the manufacture of the lumber. The cost of filling can be reduced quite a little if Mr. Hull's directions are followed. [What are they?—Ed.]

F. H. Fassett discussed Peach Growing. Select a site so as to have good air drainage. Prepare the ground as you would for corn or other crops, so as to hold the moisture to start the young tree. Soil should be good enough to make a vigorous growth each year. Light, sandy soil is usually well adapted.

In selecting trees we prefer one year olds with 3/4 inch caliper. Caliper, not height, should govern. In buying trees, consider borers and yellows as these are often transferred through nursery stock. In pruning, cut all roots to six or eight inches with a slant so as to have the cut come in contact with ground. Prune to a whip. Extreme low down trees do not do well in our climate. Lower limbs should not be less than 18 inches from ground and three or four limbs arranged four or five inches apart spirally around tree makes a well balanced tree. Plant trees two or three inches lower than they had been in the nursery. Clean tillage and cover crops are the only right methods of caring for a peach orchard. Only safe way to rid out borers is the knife and wire. Yellows should be closely watched and afflicted trees removed immediately and burned on spot where tree stood, if possible. Leaf curl is best combated by the use of lime-sulphur. Brown rot and scab is best treated with home-boiled lime-sulphur of the formula 8-8-50, applied about the time the shucks leave the peaches.

Hatching and Raising Little Chicks was discussed by C. C. McCurdy. Perseverance is the keynote of success. Love for the work and attention to detail measure for success. Select good, vigorous breeding stock. Procure the best, most reliable incubator; have sand trays under the egg trays to supply moisture. Let chicks in incubator until they show signs of hunger. Have the brooder at about the same temperature as the incubator. Keep chicks on a board floor from four to six weeks to prevent gapes. Cover floor with dry sand and cut corn fodder. For the first week, feed hard boiled eggs with dried bread rubbed fine and a little green grass chopped into bits. After first week a little charcoal mixed with equal parts of bran and beef scrap may be used. At six weeks keep cracked corn and wheat with the bran and beef scrap mash always before them. After ten weeks separate cockerels from pullets and fatten for market for broilers.

The Clover Crop and How We Grow It, was discussed by J. H.

Peachy. If you grow clover you can grow anything else. If you cannot grow clover your soil may be acid or may lack plant food or it may lack humus. Correct soil fertility by use of lime. Clip the young clover once or twice during the first summer's growth thus strengthening the root system and increasing the number of young shoots, always letting it lie on the field as a mulch.

Pruning, by F. H. Fassett. Know the natural tendency or habit of the tree. Know what you are pruning for. Have a model of the kind of a tree you want in your mind, and prune to that. Maintain an even balance between top and root. Prune all roots to six or eight inches. It is a bad practice to head trees so low as to shut out sunlight thereby offering an ideal place for fungus disease. Three or four limbs are sufficient for most trees. Cut central stem out of vase-form trees. In drooping trees carry central stem up to correct the shape of the tree. In pruning old trees always cut limbs close and cover wound with some material which will exclude sun and water. White lead and pure linseed oil make a good covering. We prefer trimming in spring after all severe freezing is over. Use a step ladder and trim from the outside toward the centre.

Making and Marketing Good Butter, by George E. Hull. Many farmers are producing butter which could be sold at gift edge prices if it could be gotten on the right market. Good butter can be made only when sanitary conditions are observed about the stables and all the way through the process. Milk cooled by cold water will make butter that will keep longer than milk chilled by the use of ice. You cannot mix warm cream with cold cream and make good butter. Procure a good dairy thermometer.

Seed Corn, Selection and Improvement, by C. C. McCurdy. Select seed corn at time of cutting, letting stalk stand until ripe but gather before severe freezing. Take into consideration the kind of stalk and ear you want to raise. Keep the seed in a dry place. By all means test and grade the seed so as to get a regular stand. Go north for seed corn if you must go out of your own community. Try new varieties of corn on a small scale.

Orchard Insects and Remedies, was discussed by F. H. Fassett. The borer is most successfully combated by use of knife and wire. Scale insects are controlled to an extent by the use of lime and sulphur applied most advantageously at the time the buds are opening. Dilute lime-sulphur with arsenate of lead is used very successfully in combating the codling moth.

History of Different Breeds of Dairy Cows was given by George E. Hull, who gave an impartial description of each breed, setting forth the good qualities in each and allowing the hearer to draw his own conclusions.

The final address at each institute given by J. H. Peachy, Good-bye, Take Care of the Farm, was humorous with an undercurrent of truth that made impressions which will live long in the minds of his hearers.

The following resolutions were adopted by both the New Enterprise and Fishertown Institutes:

Whereas, It is the sense of this meeting that our Agricultural College and Experiment Station and the Division of Farmers' Institutes in the Department of Agriculture are of great practical value to the farmer in assisting him in the conservation of soil fertility, reduction of the cost of crop production, and in helping him practically to improve his social conditions and educational advantages, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we in this farmers' meeting assembled earnestly ask our Legislature to make more liberal appropriations for the extension and improvement of these practical educational agencies; and

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to our local papers for publication and one to Hon. A. L. Martin, Director of Farmers' Institutes, Harrisburg, Pa.

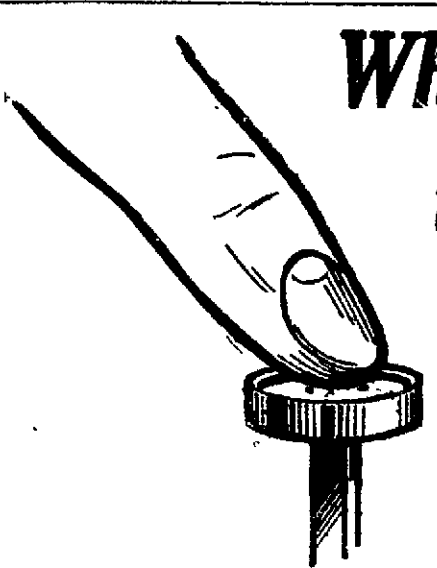

The institute at Charlesville was addressed by J. A. McSparran, a member of the Legislative Committee of the State Grange. At Fishertown W. D. Blyackburn gave the address of

The nerves of this typewriter are sensitive to the nerves of your finger tips, and just as instantly responsive as the finger tips are to the brain.

This immediate, smooth, sympathetic action, duplicated in no other writing machine, is easiest for the operator and most advantageous to the machine. Both wear longer.

Welcome. The meetings were interspersed with music and recitations. A lively interest was shown at the different places; there being an average attendance at Charlesville of 134, at New Enterprise of 177; at Fishertown the weather being very unfavorable the average attendance reached 73. The lecturers are all practical, earnest men who are practicing on their own farms the very things they are preaching to the people over the state.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Dog mouth is a new disease discovered in Pittsburg, and is contracted by kissing pet poodles. As a cry has arisen that human osculation is unhealthy unless antiseptic to a degree which makes kisses more sanitary than useful and as kissing of babies has fallen under the ban of scientific bringing up, it is no wonder that the kissing habit is going to the dogs.

Avoid Fits of Passion.

The very instant you perceive yourself in a passion, shut your mouth and keep it shut until your blood cools. This advice, if always followed, would save many a life of bitterness and of deep, incurable anguish.

Among other valuable farms we offer this week a limestone farm containing 225 acres; 100 acres mountain land—50 acres being well-timbered; having thereon erected a fine brick dwelling with 9 rooms; good bank barn with silo attached. Ancient Proofreading.

The editions of books printed 200 or 300 years ago are almost entirely free from typographical errors, which may be attributed to the fact that early publishers were generally eminent scholars and themselves gave much attention to the revision of their proofs. After reading the proofs they frequently turned them over to other scholars with the request to revise and correct, and as the printer's time was then deemed a matter of small consequence a perfection was attained which is seldom equaled by modern printers.—Exchange.

A Queer Monument

A monument erected in the Straglieno cemetery has a very curious history. It is that of an old woman of Genoa, who made a living by selling strings of nuts in the streets. By frugality and industry she succeeded in amassing a small fortune in this way and then commissioned a well known sculptor of Genoa, Luigi Orongo, to make a life sized portrait of her in marble just as she appeared at her pitch in the streets. This statue she ordered to be placed in the famous Straglieno cemetery, probably the largest in the world.—Wide World Magazine.
